Comments:

As last year, the courses at Sanders Park proved very popular with people passing by. The tricky Labyrinth seems to draw them in and get them hooked, hence the number of multiple runs. I was also pleased to see so many progressing from the Labyrinth to try some of the courses we had put out. The score proved to be really tricky for the experienced orienteers with only Robert Vickers managing to produce a clean run on his first attempt, taking all the odd controls first and then all the even controls. It just goes to show how even the simplest of areas can be arranged to produce a mental challenge.

At times, registration was almost overwhelmed with people registering, chatting about their runs and reregistering for multiple runs, but it was great fun and I must apologise if the odd run on the Labyrinth got lost in the amiable confusion.

All in all a great day and once again we were lucky with the weather.
